Dear Sirs,

I'm writing to express my interest in the Technicians position with Osbee Industries as posted on your website. As my resume shows, my background includes extensive experience working in the audio division of a large multi-media facility, (Sony Music Studios in New York). Through my experience there, I have a first hand understanding of the importance of the proper design, installation and maintenance of multi-media equipment. I am also a well-respected audio mixing engineer with a highly developed ear for sound. I believe this experience, knowledge and reputation are key attributes which Osbee and its' customers would benefit from.

While at Sony my responsibilities included the execution, development and continued management of procedures and best practices that supported a diverse range of production requirements. On any given day, the my department would need to be able to simultaneously support our facility's live broadcast feeds, sound reinforcement needs, music recording sessions, and video postproduction work. As such, I have continually updated my skillset as projects, technology and tastes dictated. I worked closely with clients and studio department heads to provide the best possible solutions for any given project. When Sony closed it's New York studios I kept my many clients, (as well as the parent company), happy by opening my own post-production facility and continued servicing their projects with little to no interruption.

These experiences have repeatedly demonstrated how important strong relationships are to the success of a larger company. I have always enjoyed this aspect of my career. Working as a team member, both as a leader and as a collaborator, troubleshooting problems and implementing technical enhancements with other technicians and talking with clients about their needs are all things make for an interesting and rewarding day of work. It's my hope that after reviewing my qualifications you will agree that I have much to offer Osbee and its' customers. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Thom Cadley
